TOPIC: Increasing Productivity through Multi-Generational Team Building

Presented by Dian Lusher,
President, Dynel, Inc.

Dian is owner of DYNEL, Inc., starting the business in 1985 after a long career with industry giant AT&T. She provides training and coaching on interpersonal skills, customer service, team-building, dealing with conflict, working with multi-generations, and other timely topics. She is past chair of the board for the St. Tammany West Chamber of Commerce and a graduate of Leadership St. Tammany. Dian is a member of chambers throughout the state, professional women's groups in St. Tammany and Hammond, and many civic, business, and non-profit boards, including the Children's Advocacy Center and St. Tammany Outreach for the Prevention of Suicide.

Date and Location: Thursday June 24, 2010
Benedict's Plantation
1144 North Causeway Blvd.
Mandeville, LA 70448

Description: For the first time in modern history, our workforce consists of four generations working side by side. Reconciling the differences among them is one of the greatest challenges in the workplace. This workshop defines the generations, describes their differences, and presents job-focused strategies for creating a work environment that capitalizes on these differences and builds a cohesive team that increases productivity and goal achievement.

Objectives: To define the generations, describe their differences, and present job-focused strategies for creating a work environment that capitalizes on these differences and builds a cohesive team that increases productivity and goal achievement.
